Job description:

The Role: Research Assistant, US Corporate Ratings – Transportation, Autos, Aerospace & Defense

The Team / The Business:

When you join S&P Global Ratings, you join one of the world's leading providers of independent credit risk research and benchmarks. You are part of a team that produces high quality fundamental research based on established criteria, you have the opportunity to participate in meetings with senior corporate executives and investors.

What we are looking for:

As a Research Assistant, you are working as part of a sector team within the Corporate Ratings group. Under the guidance of senior analysts, a qualified Research Assistant typically supports the sector team on its ongoing surveillance of a portfolio of rated corporate issuers and performs basic fundamental credit analysis, forecasting, and industry analysis. With experience, a high performing Research Assistant will provide support on more complex issuers and transactions, as well as provide input to financial models and written analysis used for committee reviews and external publications. We expect our strong Research Assistants to be promoted to Rating Analysts so they provide support on more complex analysis and may become primary analysts with their own credit list within a sector team.

The successful candidate will be comfortable in an environment of continuous improvement and high customer service standards while adhering to established ratings criteria, policies and procedures.

Successful candidates for U.S. locations must have authorization to work in the U.S. indefinitely. Sponsorship is not available for this position.

What's in it for you:

Supportive and flexible work environment within a team of 15-20 analysts (per sector) with diverse backgrounds and experiences

Hybrid work schedule with 2-3 days in the office once trained up.

Interesting work with unparalleled exposure to senior management of large US corporates

Opportunity to increase analytical, communication and presentation skills while supporting the rating process, and expand technical skills, time management capabilities and attention to detail.

Encouragement and financial support to complete the CFA or an MBA

Good progression opportunities for strong performers

Basic Qualifications:

Bachelor's degree (business/quantitative discipline preferred)

Some progress towards the CFA or MBA is a benefit

1-2 years of relevant work experience preferred

Strong analytical skills with a deep understanding of financial statement analysis and accounting concepts.

Ability to quickly absorb, analyze, and act upon information, while demonstrating strong proficiency with figures, accuracy and be detail-oriented while complying with deadlines.

Strong Excel/Word/PowerPoint and database application skills.

Solid communication skills, verbal and written, as well as the capacity to expand, learn, and make a contribution.

English communication skills should be strong - both verbal and written.

Highly organized with the ability to multitask, meet deadlines and work under time pressure.

Strong team player - the ability to work in a deal-driven, collaborative work environment is critical.

Must have ability to think independently and critically.

Self-starter, motivated, intellectually curious

Coachable; open to receiving and providing feedback. Genuine desire for personal development

The successful candidate is expected to study for the CFA and/or complete an MBA over time.
