Job description:

When you:

Think of children's art experiences as akin to a well-curated display. are captivated by transforming natural textures, color, and light into a child's creative language.

From 0 to 1, I want the chance to create a trademark project.

This invitation to co-creation may be tailored to you.

We're Searching For

A "big kid" at heart: You have contagious, upbeat energy, and you can play and connect with kids easily. You also think that learning is best done via "fun."

"Creative engine": You have a lot of ideas. You do more than simply paint; you also create tales and games and want to make difficult ideas entertaining. You may make "doodling on walls" into a quest to save the city and "observing leaves" into a detective game.

A "reliable doer" is someone with experience in design, art, or similar professions. You may confidently lead kids to realize their crazy ideas by transforming them into detailed lesson plans.

Your Part

Create the story and experience: Take a topic and turn it into narratives and interactive exercises that kids can follow and enjoy.

Create Interesting Interactions: Convert creative ideas into activities that kids may explore and create art.

Assist with the final presentation quality, material style, and on-site visuals of artwork.

Enjoy Creative Freedom: Within the main structure, you will have the most room to actualize your creative vision.
